INT. TENT - NOON

MOZLEK sits in his tent. He huddles by a flashlight. The warm noon sun filters through the tent's plastic.

A Stick cracks outside the tent.

Mozlek alerts himself.

He reaches for a baseball bat. He zips open the tent.

EXT. WOODS - CONTINUOUS

Mozlek climbs out of the tent.

He looks around.

A small porcupine rummages through the forest brush.

Mozlek readies the bat.

The porcupine snorts in excitement at the forest brush.

Mozlek brings the bat down on the porcupine. A loud CRUNCH followed by the thump of the bat hitting the ground.

Mozlek holds up the bat. The porcupine's innards drip down the fat end.

Mozlek sighs. He opens up a nearby cooler and takes out a paper towel.

Mozlek cleans the bat, and reenters the tent.
